

The 4th Smart Card Centre Open Day Free Exhibition 10/09/07

with Guest Lecture on:
The London Transport
Oyster Card

Smart Card Centre
Royal Holloway

Building on the success and popularity of previous events, the Smart Card Centre at Royal Holloway, University of London is organising its 4th open day to act as an exhibition and networking event for its sponsors, supporters, guest lecturers, students and honoured visitors. It is a chance for industry and students to stand side by side and show off research work and products related to smart cards, tokens, RFIDs, security and applications. This year, the door is being opened even wider and invitation to attend the exhibition is extended to anyone with a genuine interest in smart cards and security.

The Smart Card Centre is part of the Information Security Group (ISG) at Royal Holloway and was founded in 2002 by Vodafone, Giesecke & Devrient and the ISG.
